IN-PERSON TECHNICIAN TRAINING!

VEHICLE COMMUNICATIONS DIAGNOSIS

Network communications are the backbone to the ever-increasing new technology being introduced into today's vehicles. Systems ranging from power windows to ADAS rely on inputs and outputs from other modules. As a result, additional networks and communication protocols are being added to support these higher network loads. Technicians will be introduced to communication network concepts and to some changes in communication systems. Additionally, diagnostic procedures will be demonstrated to prepare technicians for communication faults.

EVAPORATIVE EMISSIONS DIAGNOSTICS

This seminar is designed to aid technicians in the understanding of how to diagnose and repair today's Evaporative Emission Control Systems. We will cover several types of Enhanced Evaporative Emission systems with a focus placed on Leak Detection Pumps (LDP) and Evaporative System Integrity Modules (ESIM). We will also discuss operating strategies for Engine Off Natural Vacuum (EONV) systems and Natural Vacuum Leak Detection (NVLD) systems. Leak testing procedures using some test equipment will be reviewed and discussed. Diagnostic methods for quickly pinpointing the cause of the common EVAP DTC's will be highlighted. DTC interpretation defining electrical and mechanical component faults will be reviewed to aid in streamlining diagnostic processes.
